"Going Through Bisbee Shops I Noticed That--"

Silk Jersey is used a great deal for the fall frocks.

Silver ribbon embroiders silk net. Halloween's coming—and if you are going to have a party of any kind, I suggest that you hustle and get your favors, and decorations.

The sexiest-faced pickled men and witches that perch on the bun-bon boxes and wink at you out of an evil eye, wobbly punkin' men that make you feel creepy, scary cats and kittens with crooked backs and frisky tails, with scores of funny things you'll find for your party at Reynolds Music and Gift Shop.

Such exquisite novelty lace blouses this season. The Phelps Dodge store is showing some beautiful new blouses—in all the two-tone combinations—slate and silver grey, slate and white, silver grey and black, and all the tones of brown—and better than ever a cloth of gold slipper, embroidered in gold beads for seven-fifty.

Wide loose belts appear on many of the new frocks.

At present purple veils are very much in vogue, but the duration of the vogue is doubtful.

The coat which hangs from the shoulders and is belted in front is new.

One can not use too much fur, and the Fair has an excellent selection. There is white in widths from one inch to six, with the highest price one dollar seventy-five, beaver, mole, gray and blue fox, really all the popular furs for this season. They really trim and make the up-to-date frock.

The up-to-date Bisbee women must be shimmery and expansive in her toilette this season, and must carry pockets of size and fancy, except of her very best gown. There are numerous innovations in the make-up of frocks, and the materials now illustrate these departures. For instance broadcloth is used for collars and cuffs on silk, whereas the contrary used to be the accepted mode. An illustration is brown satin Louvain used with gold broadcloth collars and cuffs.

Satin de chine is a beautiful new fabric, coming in several qualities all a yard wide.

The name faille is now given to a material that resembles the old fashioned poplin.

As to the satin Louvain it is also shown in a very fine red, and, while a glossy fabric, is not as full as the high lights as satin proper.

"The time had come, the walrus said—to think about making Xmas gifts, and materials and ideas galore are to be shown, with the virtue of not being expensive. Now, who wouldn't like a pretty fudge apron of blue cotton goods, bib front and strap back, and long enough to cover the skirt front?"

The decorations are simple patch work cut and plate design outlined in the color of black which is very effective with the white on the blue. A square bag flaunts a merry clown, in all of his grin and paint, his hands in his wide pockets, on which are stamped this legend:

"You'd never know unless you're told."

How many things these pockets hold."

And sure enough, the capacious pockets will hold two pairs of shoes and more.

Pretty Xmas presents are boudoir pillows done in the patch work, which is now at the height of its popularity. The pillows can be bought stamped in blue and white with indications just where the patches are to be applied. Favorite designs are apple boughs in natural tints, and the morning glory on the trellis—and they are very inexpensive.

Powder puffs in the form of soles, used for bedroom slippers, which are lined with lambs wool, covered with broadcloth silk, the reverse or wool side used as the puff, ribbons slip over the hand and form the handles. These are particularly good for the neck and shoulders.

Exceedingly handsome are the wrist bags, in the various styles and shapes—made mostly of silk, and bead trimmed—while the party bags are dolls dresses in quaint ball gowns with the bag underneath which holds the slippers, with the pretty dolls face the whole thing is attractive in the extreme.

Fascinating toys are made in the shape of animals and dolls, that are made of soft cloth to be stuffed into hugable and fascinating toys, free from all possibility of harm. These patterns can be bought ready to be stuffed at home.

A pretty tam for the youngster is purple velvet embroidered in gold yarn, and finished with long gold tassels.

Aren't some of the new tailored frocks just like a woman? It starts so many things it has no intention of finishing—as a gown in blue cloth and satin embroidery, with the collar which starts of the cloth and iron becomes pointed chiffon.

In this season of elusive waistlines one accepts without question the monastic cord which belts with velvet blouse.

Paillettes have taken the place of sequin and spangles—being less expensive but they look just as pretty and the hues are so varied.

The skirts from Lanvin are not exceedingly wide, but enough so as to fall in soft folds.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's sister told me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Fashion Always Mindful of the Miss

What Paris Offers In Styles By May Manton

THIS is a season at which girls are preparing for the return to college and to boarding school and this group of costumes should be suggestive. They provide for many needs and each of the designs is a good one. The middy costume will be ideal for the class-room and for general wear. The street costume is one of the newest and smartest and top coats are essential in these days. The simple loose model that is shown here is admirable for general wear and for motoring and for all occasions that are likely to come in the college or boarding school girls' life. In the illustration it is made of a rough finished cheviot in shades of brown and tan with occasional bits of red to give brightness but there are a great many available fabrics. Velour is being much used and checked velours show most attractive colors that are youthful in effect. The pretty little afternoon frock combines plaid taffeta with plain but it could be copied in serge with silk or in any two materials that harmonize well. The lines are the prettiest and smartest possible.

PARIS is showing new costumes this week and all sorts of cabled reports are reaching these shores. As a matter of course, there will be a great many garbled accounts and many statements made that will not be verified later, but those of us who are accustomed to the sifting process are able to glean certain truths and to realize what may be taken as indicative of the coming season, and is therefore, of especial interest. Undoubtedly, the greater number of readers are enjoying the late season and wearing sports costumes and they will not feel a very deep interest in velvet and in fur, but the subject of dress is always one of interest and now and again we look forward even when summer rascals hold us enthralled.

That there will be a great deal of velvet worn is an established fact, both for street costumes and for gowns. The street suits will show a great many of the velvet finished wool cloths in drapery, velours and the like. Fur is so much shown on advanced models that so much talked that one wonders when the supply is to come. Note seal and imitation seal, and close haired furs of the sort are the preferred ones for trimming, for the reason that they lend themselves to all sorts of fabrics with greater ease than do the fur haired ones, but it is safe to say that every kind of skin will be worn.

The famous designer M. Rodier has a few fur cloths too, that are exceedingly rich and handsome and beautiful in color, sufficiently suggestive of fur to be utilized in the same way without any hint of that sort of imitation which always is vulgar. The Rodier fabrics stand for themselves. They are not imitations in any vulgar sense. They are meant to be utilized after the manner of fur, but that they are woven materials is fully apparent and fully understood. When we are told that the French designers of the highest repute are using them, their value and their worth will be established. We must have cloths of the sort, if we are to have a fur season. Profuse as the wools are they cannot afford a never ending supply. Again, conditions across the sea are making training, dyeing, and all the preliminary stages of the fur season difficult if not impossible. M. Rodier has come to our relief in this case, as he has done many times before. His fabrics always are beautiful and these new ones undoubtedly will meet with a hearty welcome.

Fur trimmings are used in almost numberless ways but there is a very marked tendency toward skirt finish, either of a single wide band or of a succession of narrow ones, the trimming extending well up to the knees. Satin suits will be very extensively worn. Very beautiful models are made with simple full skirts that are of the satin for the lower part, but of Georgette or other thin material for the upper. The blouses combine the two materials usually the sleeves being of the thinner and the coats are of the satin. Taupe with moleskin makes a very beautiful effect. A handsome costume shows that combination, the fur being put on the skirt in first a band approximately five inches in width, above that in a succession of narrower bands while the coat is made with the collar, cuffs and buttons of the fur, and fur buttons make something of a feature of these new fashions, and promise to be extensively used. In-door gowns also show fur used in various ways, but as a matter of course in greater moderation, narrow bandings being the most general form in which they appear.

There is considerable discussion on the subject of coats but finger and wrist lengths probably will prevail for suits with long coats for afternoon visits and for evening wear. The waist line both in suits and in gowns is something of a problem for it appears in many forms. One designer will out forth the raised or Empire line, another prefers the long straight line of the sleeves, and a third will insist on the natural waist line, although nothing of the "pinched in" effect is to be met. Judging from indications it is to be a season of very great variety and also of great opportunity.

Colors are singularly beautiful. There will be the ferns of each year's red worn. Burgundy and Bordeaux shades are favorites and there is a new red that is known as Bivouac, that is just a little unlike either of the others but rich and dark and especially beautiful in velvet. A very striking three-piece costume that comes from the house of Buloz, is made of velvet in this color and gives evidence of the modified Moven are effect that undoubtedly will be seen to some extent. The bodice of the velvet extends well to the hips in almost straight lines. The full sleeves of Georgette in matching color are attached at the shoulders and both the bodice and sleeves are enriched with embroidery in gold thread, but this embroidery is of the new sort which is obtained by machine stitching over a stamped design, and in this instance, that design takes the form of a succession of diamonds arranged to form borders and edges in a most effective manner. The bodice is made with a high neck and straight standing collar and the embroidery enriches all the lower portion and gives the effect of a wide giraffe. The skirt is plain over the hips, but arranged in very full gathers at the front and at the back. The short little coat is quite suggestive of the military with a perfectly plain loose back with belted front and is trimmed with mink on the edge, mink collar and mink cuffs. It is an exceedingly beautiful costume, in its color, in its combinations of materials and in its embroidery, it can be taken as indicating the essential feature of the new fashions.

Embroidery undoubtedly is to be extensively used, every possible kind of embroidery, the machine stitching that is put to wonderful uses and also the hand embroidery of the heavy effective sort. On one side there is to be noted a marked tendency toward the Chinese and Bulgarian designs, and all the Oriental and semi-oriental effects, but on the other there will be met such simple effects as a single conventional flower outlined with silver or with gold, or a spider's web worked with silver thread or with gold thread giving a wonderful lace-like and fascinating effect. A very handsome afternoon gown of charmeuse satin is enriched with embroideries on the bodice, some in triangle, some in crescent for a and these simple conventional figures are filled in with a variety of stitches combining such colors as red and blue and green and yellow, to give a distinctly Oriental effect. There is nothing difficult about the work. It is done with heavy embroidery silk and fills in very rapidly but a definite color scheme and a correct eye are needed if success is to be obtained. Such combinations are an edge of over and over embroidery, a border of darning within and small circles, triangles and the like some of darning, some in over and over stitches filling the remaining spaces are seen, but no law can be laid down and wonderful ingenuity is shown and as long as the Oriental suggestion is found, the essential smartness will be there.

It is astonishing what this simple daisy form and spider's web can be made to do. An exquisite gown of grey silk is embroidered with a large daisy in silver thread on the skirt and with a few similar daisies on the skirt to be really exquisite. We are to have embroidered hats as well as embroidered gowns and a velvet hat with a single big spider's web embroidered on one side of the crown and brim, charming in effect. Silver and gold and all metal threads are used as well as silk. It is indeed, a season of embroideries and of the stitchery and all effects of the sort.
